STRONGER HOSPITALS, STRONGER COMMUNITIES—Kevin Decker, CEO of West Tennessee Healthcare Volunteer Hospital, explained to Kiwanis members at the Sept. 17 meeting that the local hospital is a 100-bed facility committed to providing exceptional healthcare to the Martin, TN, community and surrounding area. He said that Tennessee communities need hospitals and shared a graphic showing the total number of hospitals in Tennessee (167) with 109 of those being urban hospitals and 58 being rural hospitals. He noted that there are 22 counties without any hospital. Decker said that the care you trust is right here close to you whether it's a check-up or something more serious. He underscored that "the team of more than 78 dedicated healthcare professionals takes pride in delivering hometown care and fostering a healing and compassionate environment for patients and their families." His theme of "stronger hospitals, stronger communities" was illustrated clearly and carefully through his comments and the materials he distributed to members.
