Last Week's Meeting

Allan Sterbinsky (left), director of the newly formed Center for Rural Innovation at UT Martin, and Carrie Humphreys, chair of the Department of Political Science and Global Studies, shared history and information about the center when they were invited to give a presentation for Kiwanis at the Nov. 12 meeting. One of the motivating factors in the formation of the center, explained Humphreys, is that many students want to stay in Tennessee and close to home but sometimes job opportunities are limited. Sterbinsky said that three types of paid student internships are available through the center: working with local government/organizations, commercial/technical reporting for government agencies, and social/cultural projects of regional importance. "Internships are designed to provide students with real life experiences that will help in a chosen career path," he said. For more information contact Allan (asterbin@utm.edu) or Carrie (chumph16@utm.edu) respectively. Sara Sieber, Kiwanis program chair for November, introduced the speakers, and Katie Parr, Kiwanis president, presented them with a certificate of appreciation showing that a donation will be made to Captain's Pantry at UT Martin.
